BELLE GLADE'S CIVIL SERVICE SYSTEM

Questions And Answers On

BELLE GLADE'S CIVIL SERVICE SYSTEM

What is the system?

It's a law setting up a five man board of citizens and property owners appointed by your City Commission to make rules under which your City employees will work. What if I don't like thege rules?

Suppose! wanted to get a job working for the City. How would I go about getting one?

Wanted I go about getting one?

What if I don't like I go work would first register with the board telling all your qualifications and just what kind of job you wanted. When a vacancy came up or a new job was created, you would be notified and asked to take an examination along with other applicants. A dozen years ago there was a widely expressed fear that the growth of chain retail systems was imperiling the very existence of independent stores. This led to the passage of punyations of the control taxes in a number of the control taxes in a number of the control taxes and the control taxes in a number of the chains was also proposed—though lockly for the consumers of the country, it was finally bestem. In the light of all that, it's interesting to see just what chain competition has done to independent merchandising. And there's no guesswork involved, for the Department of Commerce pro-no guesswork involved, for the Department vides the figures.

Here, then, is the story: In 1929, the chains did 20.3 per cent of the total retail volume. In 1939 they did 21.7 per cent. And in 1947 they did 21.5 per cent, a trifle less than they did eight years previously.

As Chain Store Age describes the situation, "In the past two decades, despite all the economic changes wrougth by the depression, the war, and the cities decaded and the commendation of t In 1947 they did 21.5 per cent, a trille less unan use, we spears previously.

As Chain Store Age describes the situation, "In the past two decades, despite all the economic changes wrough by the depression, the war, and the effect of national growth, the relative position of the claims and the independents has undergone no change. . The fact that the chains last year accounted for some $25,000,000,000 worth of sales is matched by the fact that the independents and other types of operations accounted for no less than $35,000,000,000 worth of sales."

In a healthy, competitive retail system every worthwhile kind of operation holds its own and keeps up with the tide of progress. That's exactly what has been happening here.
